The fight against the unit rule is to be transferred to the floor of the Convention. If it is I can only say that we are ready to meet it.

GOV. HORACE E. BOIES, OF IOWA.

"Senator Wallace, I understand, has been to see a number of the Anti-Cleveland leaders of other States, and apprise them of such a plan, but I am also informed that the proposition was not any too well received. One of the most prominent of these leaders, one who occupies a high official position in the party organization, admitted to me that he did not believe the move would amount to much."

U. S. SENATOR ARTHUR P. GORMAN.

Mr. Hartly would neither deny nor affirm that the information came from Calvin S. Bries.

RECRUITS FOR CLEVELAND'S CAMP.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—The usual nightly conference of the Cleveland leaders in Mr. Wallace's rooms at the Richfield did not break up until nearly 3 o'clock this morning. Among those present were Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, ex-Postmaster Hartley, of Philadelphia, Congressman John E. Russell, of Massachusetts, and about a dozen others.

After going over the figures and the reports from all the States, it was found that a gain of 21 votes has been made for Cleveland during yesterday. This puts the official Cleveland figures up to 578, which, according to Mr. Whitney's idea, are absolutely sure.

National Committee member Dorman, of Minnesota, who was one of the Democratic leaders present, said to-day:

"The reports from the different States were most satisfactory, and are showing a steady gain all the time. Mr. Cleveland's friends now firmly believe that he will receive more than the necessary two-thirds vote on the first ballot. At any rate he will have so large a majority over all his opponents combined that there is not, in our opinion, the slightest doubt of his nomination."

Figures are plentiful this morning, and a dozen or more tables by mathematicians from both sides are being circulated. One gives Cleveland 602 votes and Hill 105 on the first ballot. Another gives Cleveland 586 and Hill 112, while a third, that of the Chicago Tribune, claims to be based upon an actual poll of the delegates in town, and estimates Cleveland 518 and Hill 175.

A canvass of the delegates by the name paper shows 593 opposed to and 205 in favor of free coinage of silver.

CLAIMS FOR SENATOR HILL.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—The Hill managers are doing very little talking this morning, but they have issued another manifesto, in which great stress is laid upon the fact that Mr. Hill has always been successful in political contests in New York, and his elements of popularity are enumerated at length.

It is told how he secured the Legislature for the Democratic party and his efforts for equal representation, his opposition to summary legislation, his claims on the labor vote and his popularity among farmers and grand army veterans as a result of legislation which he has initiated, are all emphasized.

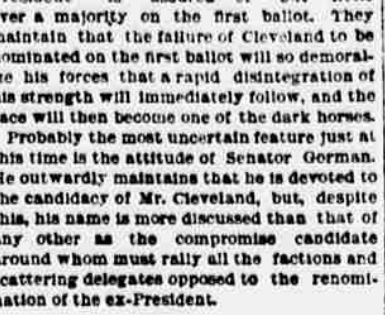

The electoral vote of New York, it is said, is absolutely necessary to the success of the Democratic National ticket. David B. Hill retains all these elements of popularity, and past experience has proved that he can carry the State.

"The Democrats of New York desire success, regardless of personal interests," says the document. "Believing that the fruits of Democratic victories won in New York under the leadership of this great Democrat are at stake, the presentation of the above facts has been made for the enlightenment of delegates who have the interest of the party at heart, and who desire above all else its success in the coming campaign."

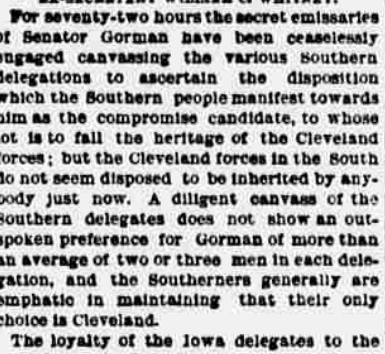

No official figures have yet been given out by the Hill managers, but the latest estimates of the strength of the rival leaders, emanating from Hill sources, claims 330 votes for Hill, while 438 votes are conceded to Cleveland.

The little rumor which was caused yesterday by the rumor that Senator Hill was in town, has blown over. It is stated positively to-day by his friends that he has no intention of coming to Chicago.

Gorman, devoid these figures as unreasonably extravagant, and assert that their investigations show that the ex-President is assured of but little over a majority on the first ballot. They maintain that the failure of Cleveland to be nominated on the first ballot will do more to demoralize his forces than any disintegration of his strength will immediately follow, and the race will then become one of the dark horses.

Probably the most uncertain feature just at this time is the attitude of Senator Gorman. He outwardly maintains that he is devoted to the candidacy of Mr. Cleveland, but, despite this, his name is more discussed than that of any other as the compromise candidate around whom must rally all the factions and scattering delegates opposed to the renomination of the ex-President.

EX-SECRETARY WILLIAM C. WHITNEY.

For several two hours the secret enemies of Senator Gorman have been ceaselessly engaged canvassing the various Southern delegations to ascertain the disposition which the Southern people manifest towards him as the compromise candidate, to whose lot is to fall the heritage of the Cleveland forces; but the Cleveland forces in the South do not seem disposed to be inherited by any body just now. A diligent canvass of the Southern delegates does not show an outspoken preference for Gorman of more than an average of two or three men in each delegation, and the Southerners generally are emphatic in maintaining that their only choice is Cleveland.

The loyalty of the Iowa delegates to the candidacy of Gov. Boies has aroused the admiration of the Democracy of the nation. They have demonstrated so emphatically that the 26 votes of Iowa are immovably wedded to the hopes of the Hawkeye Governor, that Iowa occupies the position of being the only State in the Union whose delegation is not claimed in whole or in part by either Cleveland or some of the other candidates.

The diplomatic suggestion that Boies would be a good Vice-Presidential candidate in the event of Cleveland's selection does not even find courteous reception in the Iowa headquarters.

Indiana, that State whose vote has regularly been the bone of contention in every Democratic Convention for nearly a quarter of a century, again presents the spectacle of dissension, discord and factional quarrels.

The State Convention of a few weeks ago, in order to settle factional differences, allowed in general terms the record of the ex-President, and the ex-Gov. Isaac P. Gray as the logical leader to whom the nation should turn. The result is that Gov. Gray's friends, who number about seventeen of the thirty votes of the Indiana delegation, are insisting that the solid vote of the Hoosier State should now be cast for him.

But there is a more aggressive Cleveland man in the Indiana delegation. Three or four conferences have been held, but they have been fruitless to secure any compromise by which the vote of Indiana can be cast as a unit for any candidate, and the indications this morning are that the delegation may cast seventeen votes for Gray and thirteen votes for Cleveland.

TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—William C. Owens, of Kentucky, will be temporary Chairman of the Convention. Mr. Watterson has won his fight. The Sub-Committee on Temporary Organization of the National Committee met about 10.30 this morning, and it took a very long time for it to record the fact that it would "suggest" to the National Committee the name of Mr. Owens for temporary presiding officer.

The full Committee meets at noon. It is believed that there will be no fight over the matter, and that Mr. Owens's name will go through without opposition.

While the National Committee simply recommends a name for temporary Chairman, it has always been the custom for the Convention to accept the recommendation, and there will be no fight on the floor to overturn the decision of the Committee. The Cleveland men have stood by Gen. Stevenson, but will acquiesce in the decision.

While the National Committee is temporary and permanent Secretary of the Convention. He is the Secretary of the National Committee, and his selection was unanimous, as was his selection for a place on the National Committee by the Indiana delegation.

TO CONTEST OR NOT TO CONTEST.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—The seventy-two delegates from the Syracuse May Convention held the first meeting of the full delegation at 10 A. M. to-day. It was designed to formulate their method of procedure, which would involve the determination as to whether a contest should be made before the Committee on Credentials or before the Convention at large. Decisive action was deferred, however, until 10 o'clock this afternoon, unless an earlier hour should be found advisable.

A committee of seven was named to develop a definite and detailed plan of action, and this committee will report to the meeting this afternoon. The committee is composed of R. Coudert, Charles E. Fairchild, Alex. E. Orr, Charles F. Bries, Edward Fitzgerald, F. C. Peck and F. J. Mahon.

The Syracuse organization is to-day receiving applications from many State delegations for New York Cleveland men to be sent to them to explain how, in their judgment, Grover Cleveland can carry New York State. Prompt responses are being made to these applications, and the "Dandelion" delegates and workers are, in turn, asking the Hill supporters and others to join them in a joint canvass of the New York situation before the various delegations.

Among the accessions this morning to the ranks of the May Convention Cleveland men were: Alexander E. Orr, President of the New York Produce Exchange; James Shulman, ex-Chief Commissioner of New York; Col. William L. Brown, of New York.

EX-MAYOR WILLIAM B. GRACE.

If the Cleveland Democracy of Buffalo is led by Mayor Charles F. Bishop, one of the delegates-at-large of the May Convention. The entire delegation is composed of the leading business men of Buffalo and is said to be the largest company ever sent out of Buffalo to attend any convention.

PALMER IS FOR CLEVELAND.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—Like a shot from an ambuscaded enemy came the announcement to the anti-Cleveland leaders that Senator Palmer, of Illinois, had withdrawn from the Presidential contest, and requested that the 48 votes of Illinois be cast for ex-President Cleveland. This meant that the strongest of the doubtful States of the West was in line for Cleveland, and that 48 votes more would be added to that column which is already dangerously near the two-thirds line.

Senator Palmer's arrival was unexpected, and his visit to the city is solely for the purpose of effecting the nomination of ex-President Cleveland. To an Associated Press reporter the Senator said:

"I have come here to ask the Illinois delegation not to antagonize Cleveland, but to be consistent in obeying the wishes of the Democrats of the State of Illinois, and fight for him and help nominate him. Above all, I do not want any detection in the delegation or in the ranks of the Illinois Democracy. I want this State to be carried for Cleveland, and I have no doubt it will be if he is nominated by the Convention."

Always a Cleveland Man.

"I myself have always been for Cleveland, and still believe that he is the man to nominate. I have tried to divest myself of all personal interest in the matter, and my great anxiety is that we should now have harmony in the party throughout the State, because I believe we will carry Illinois if we do not handicap ourselves. And I do not believe, either (with emphasis), that it is necessary to have a local candidate in order to carry Illinois."

At this point a devoted young Illinois friend of Gen. Palmer, a representative of a local political organization, who was urging the Senator to remain in the race and not declare for Cleveland, interrupted with the assertion that Cleveland could never receive the vote of the State of New York, and that the wishes of the regular delegation of that State must be respected.

"There are two ways of disposing of this New York question," said Senator Palmer in reply. "One is to let the Cleveland leaders and New York, if the Democrats there so desire it, and the other is to nominate and elect him without the vote of New York, if he must be elected without it. After that, New York will cease to be a controlling factor in national conventions."

Suppose that Illinois comes to the front and supports Cleveland, and that he is nominated by the Convention, and yet after that these New York Democrats have either got to support Cleveland or go out of the Democratic party. If they do not support him they will be too dead to be kicked by an army mule; but I have no doubts they will support him."

I firmly believe that Cleveland can be elected if he is carried by the vote of the electoral vote of New York for the sake of Massachusetts. I think Cleveland will carry Massachusetts, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and New Jersey. Cleveland has always stood out honestly and earnestly for his own convictions, and he now has a hold upon a large number of the people of this country who had no particular interest in him before.

While the National Committee simply recommends a name for temporary Chairman, it has always been the custom for the Convention to accept the recommendation, and there will be no fight on the floor to overturn the decision of the Committee. The Cleveland men have stood by Gen. Stevenson, but will acquiesce in the decision.

A COLD DAY FOR SOME ONE.

TO-DAY'S CLEVELAND FIGURES.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, June 20.—The Cleveland managers worked till an early hour this morning in order to secure the most complete reports from the various delegations, and the claim is now made that, granting to Senator Hill, Senator Gorman, Gov. Boies and all the votes that may be pledged them or are considered doubtful, Mr. Cleveland has 580 cast-iron, rock-ribbed, copper-bound delegates, who will stick until the ex-President is again named for the highest office in the gift of the people.

Here are given the figures:

It is denied, both by the friends of Mr. Gorman and the anti-Cleveland leaders, that any such combination is dreamed of, and Mr. Gorman himself has come out in an interview saying that the talk about his candidacy is without foundation and unauthorized, and that Maryland will cast her vote for Cleveland on the first ballot.

The fact that the Hill leaders are dumb in regard to their real intentions, and persistently declare that they will stick to the New York Senator to the end, when in the popular belief he is absolutely out of the race, seems to indicate that a deep game is being played.

Those who know Senator Gorman say that he too adds a politician to be led into such a trap as championing a forlorn hope.

Coming into Cleveland Lines.

Despite the assaults of Tammany, the Cleveland lines appear to be as solid as ever, and at the headquarters at the Palmer House this morning it is reported that warring delegates are being won over to his support on all sides. Now that all the delegates have arrived and it is possible to see them personally, the figures which are given out this morning are more accurate than those in tables previously prepared.

Cleveland's claim 500 votes for Cleveland on the first ballot, and are confidently predicting that he will secure more than the necessary two-thirds when the warring ones begin to realize how the battle is going.

The Connecticut delegation arrived yesterday. The Hill men claimed three votes from this State, while the Cleveland leaders conceded them two. At a meeting of the delegation, after arrival, it was decided that its votes would go to Cleveland as a unit.

Of the Massachusetts delegates, it was said this morning that four delegates who were supposed to be for Hill had come out for Cleveland, being convinced that he was the choice of the people.

Maryland delegates are much excited over the development of the Gorman boom, and one of them declared this morning that the Iowa people as well as the Hill leaders were interested in the movement, which was also being backed up by the delegates from the silver States. This is denied by Chairman Gorman, who says that the delegates from Iowa, Maryland and other States are not interested in the movement, which was also being backed up by the delegates from the silver States. Rumors are current that the Hill leaders are making efforts to secure some disaffected delegates from the Illinois delegation, but this is also met with an emphatic denial from several of its members, who say that the State will cast its vote solely for Cleveland. The positive withdrawal of Morrison and Palmer is said to have settled this question conclusively.

Campbell Not a Candidate.

The anti-Cleveland men expected to draw some of their strength from Ohio and were anxious to boom ex-Gov. Campbell a day or two ago. Now that he has decided to be a candidate and has come out openly for Cleveland, the Hill estimates in that State have shrunk perceptibly.

"Campbell will stick," said ex-Mayor Grace at the Grand Pacific this morning. "The opponents of Mr. Cleveland are utterly disgraced, and there is no possibility that they can come together on any one man. If they could it would be of no avail to defeat Cleveland. As to what Senator Hill and his friends may or may not do is a matter of indifference to us. We do not now regard him as a factor in the contest."

Nothing is heard to-day of the Carlisle, Pattison, Gray or Flower booms. They have all died out of sight before the growing Cleveland sentiment, which is now so strong

OLD HUTCH IN A NEW ROLE.

Paint Brush in Hand Fixing Up His Pork and Beans Factory.

Doesn't Know About Fans, but There'll Be Lots of Fools Around.

Benjamin F. Hutchinson, familiarly known as "Old Hutch," the ex-millionaire ruler of the grain market, was this morning again at work painting and sitting up his restaurant at 31 Pearl street, where the principal dishes, according to rumor, will be pork, in deference to Chicago, the scene of his wildest operations, and beans, as a souvenir of the corns on which he risked and lost so many millions.

As a matter of personal taste, however, he will also carry a big stock of squash pie, for the sake of which, indeed, he is said to have decided to become a Boniface, as his demand for this toothsome dainty was sometimes not supplied with sufficient alacrity at the restaurant where he used to take his meals.

"Old Hutch" was an uncommunicative body as ever, although he had promised last week that he would to-day make known his programme. He was asked by an Evening World reporter:

"When do you think of opening your restaurant?"

"How do you know it's to be a restaurant? It may be a furniture store. I can't tell what the future will be until I can see it."

"What is your present intention about it?"

"My present intention is to fix up my place, as you call it, you keep on bothering us with questions."

"You will have a breezy place for a restaurant," ventured the reporter. "Running through from Pearl to Bridge streets there will have to be a lot of air. I don't suppose you will have any fans, will you?"

"Don't know about fans, but I'll have plenty of food hanging about this place. You are not the first one to-day."

"Old Hutch" was delivering his remarks in a jerky, excited manner, every now and then emphasizing his periods with a jab of a forefinger at the reporter's nose. He was dressed in full broadcloth and sported an immaculate white shirt and big black tie, which together with his Quaker hat, made him look like a dandy in his Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. He looked rugged and picturesque in the extreme as he laid the points upon his walls his establishment, regardless of the splendor of the weather.

While the interview was going on Mr. Hutch, a restaurateur, of 36 Whitehall street, who had been waiting for a long time, and presently walked away with about half of the paraphernalia which "Old Hutch" had put together to fix up his place. Mr. Hutch afterwards said: "I got the things for less than they would have cost me elsewhere."

The reporter once more approached "Old Hutch," and said:

"So you may possibly go into the furniture business after all? But, if all the fools in New York don't know that you don't do it, I could make a big career in bookkeeping."

When the Evening World reporter asked for permission to draw him the latter gave a short laugh, and, getting up, he said: "I got the things for less than they would have cost me elsewhere."

84 DEGREES OF HEAT.

The Mercury Climbing Up Towards 90 and Humidity in It, Too.

The mercury's vaulting record of 91 degrees, made in 1888, promises, according to Weather Forecaster Dunn, to be equalled before sundown to-day.

At 8 o'clock this morning the temperature was 75 and humidity 80 per cent, with a breeze blowing at the rate of twenty-one miles per hour.

At 12.30 the thermometer at Perry's pharmacy indicated 84 degrees, but the heat was tempered by a stiff breeze and rendered less oppressive. The mercury had climbed from 79 to 84 in two and one half hours, and the wind was blowing at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

The heat was severely felt particularly in the crowded tenement districts of New York, where several cases of collapse are reported. In the downtown resorts where cooling beverages are dispensed the patron are indicated that the calorics and made an impression and that any kind of temporary relief was easily subsided.

Thomas Morris, forty years old, of 587 West Thirty-second street, died at his home this morning from heat prostration.
